"Dr. Baldrige was key to this gift," said Elizabeth King, WSU Foundation president and CEO, "which shows the impact our faculty have on students of all ages."

As award recipient, Baldrige will receive $1,000, which will be used to help advance the good work he does for the university. He plans to use the money for the exchange program.

Baldrige was presented the award, a piece of Karg art, at the WSU Foundation National Advisory Council's business meeting on April 26 by Craig Barton. Barton is chair of the committee that selects the recipients from names submitted by WSU Foundation staff members.
